The faces of youth . . .
pondering,
persevering,
changing,
Like weeds . . .
profuse,
futile,
undesired,
reflect the individuality
of each being,
inhibited by society's demands,
and continue their growth
in defiance of nature's classification, striving to contain
their singular beauty.

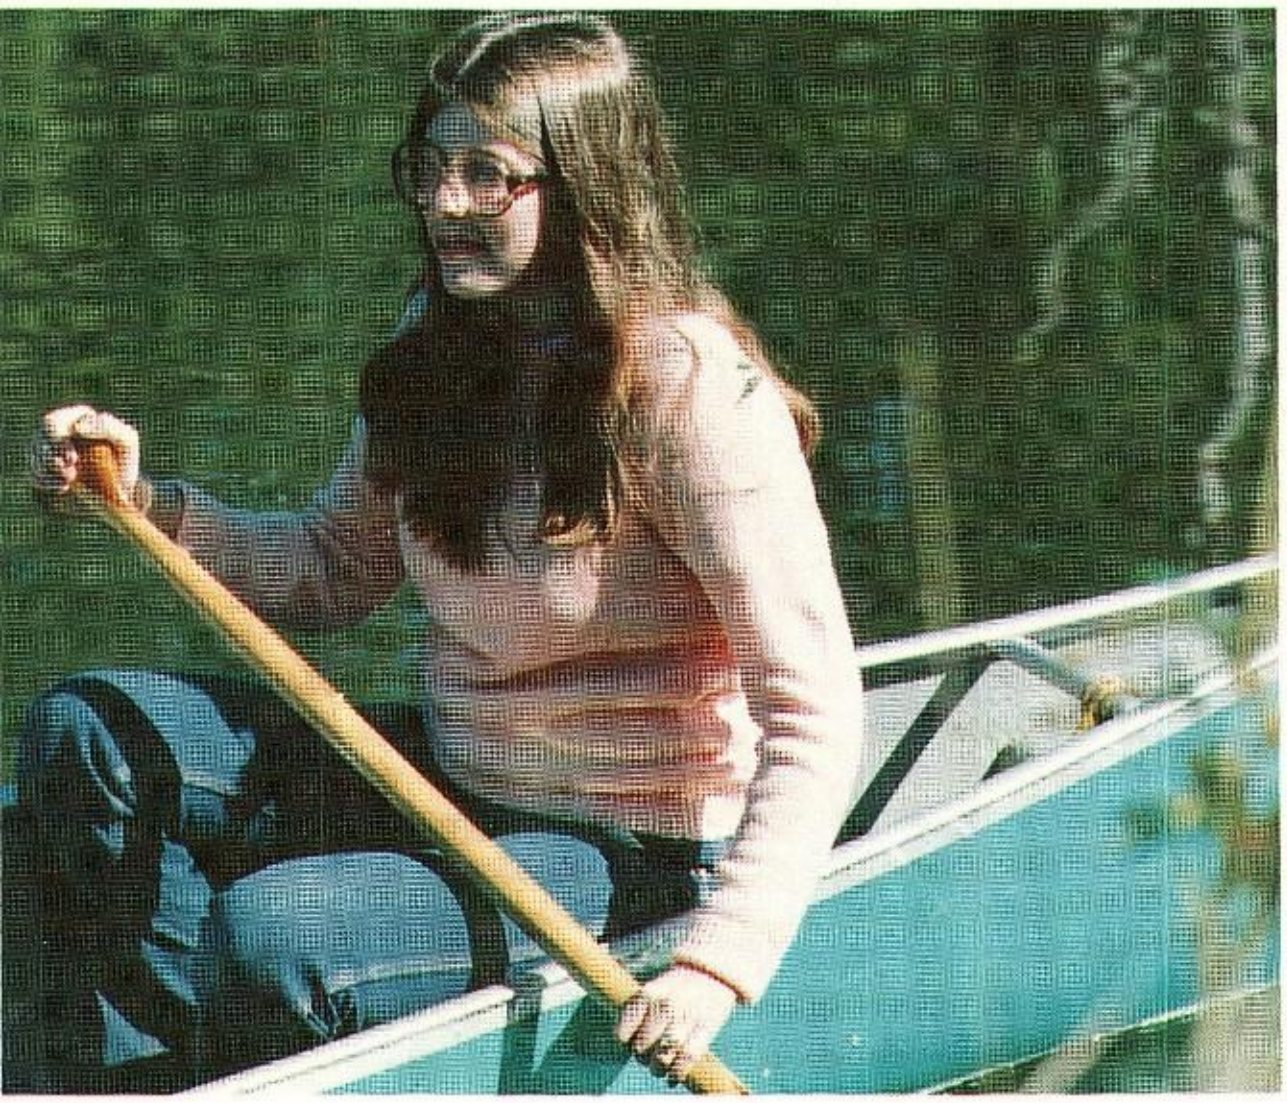
The path of life is cluttered
with many obstacles . . .
competition,
pressure,
tension . . .
The growth of vegetation is stunted
by nature's power . . .
frost,
drought,
flood . . .
However, the will to survive
overpowers these obstructions
forcing adaptations
between man and nature.



It is inevitable that this path . . .
long,
hard,
lonely,
must be traveled by all —
their direction being determined by the goals they seek.

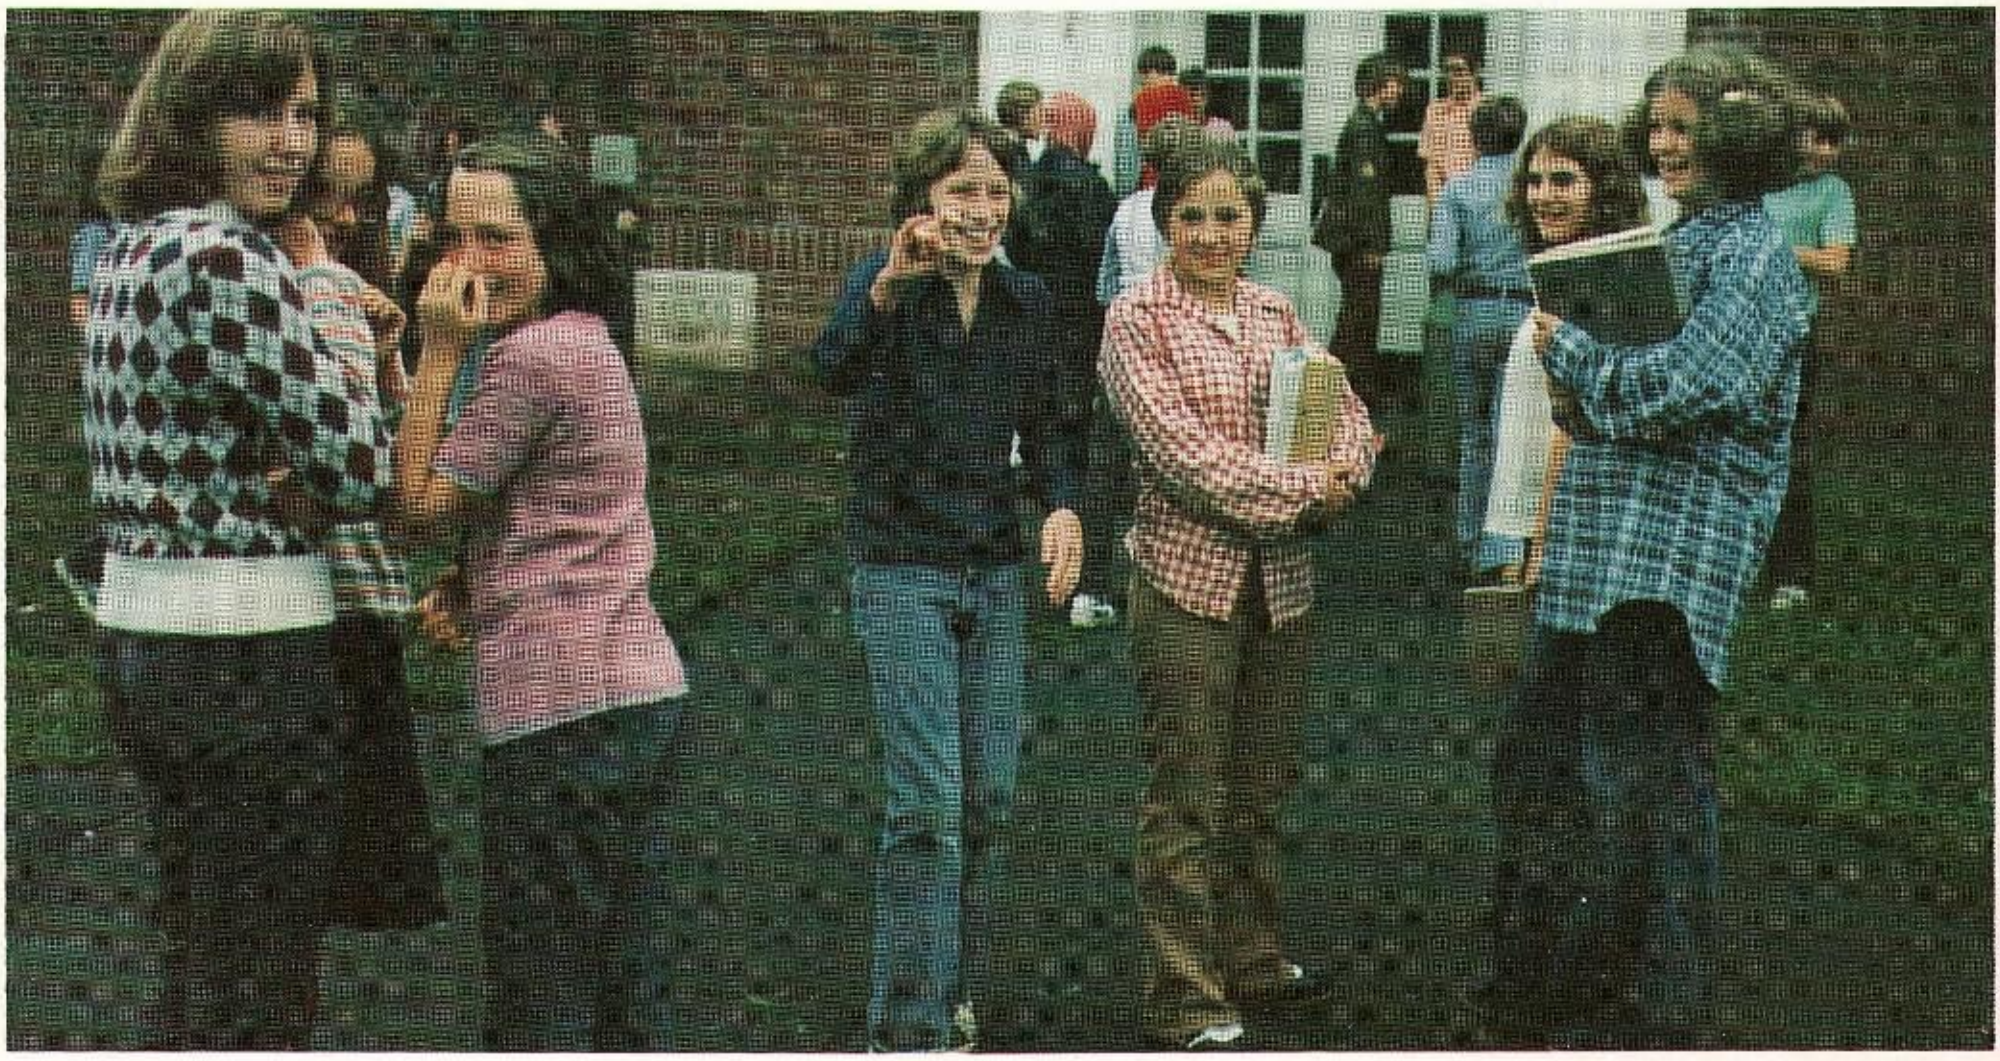
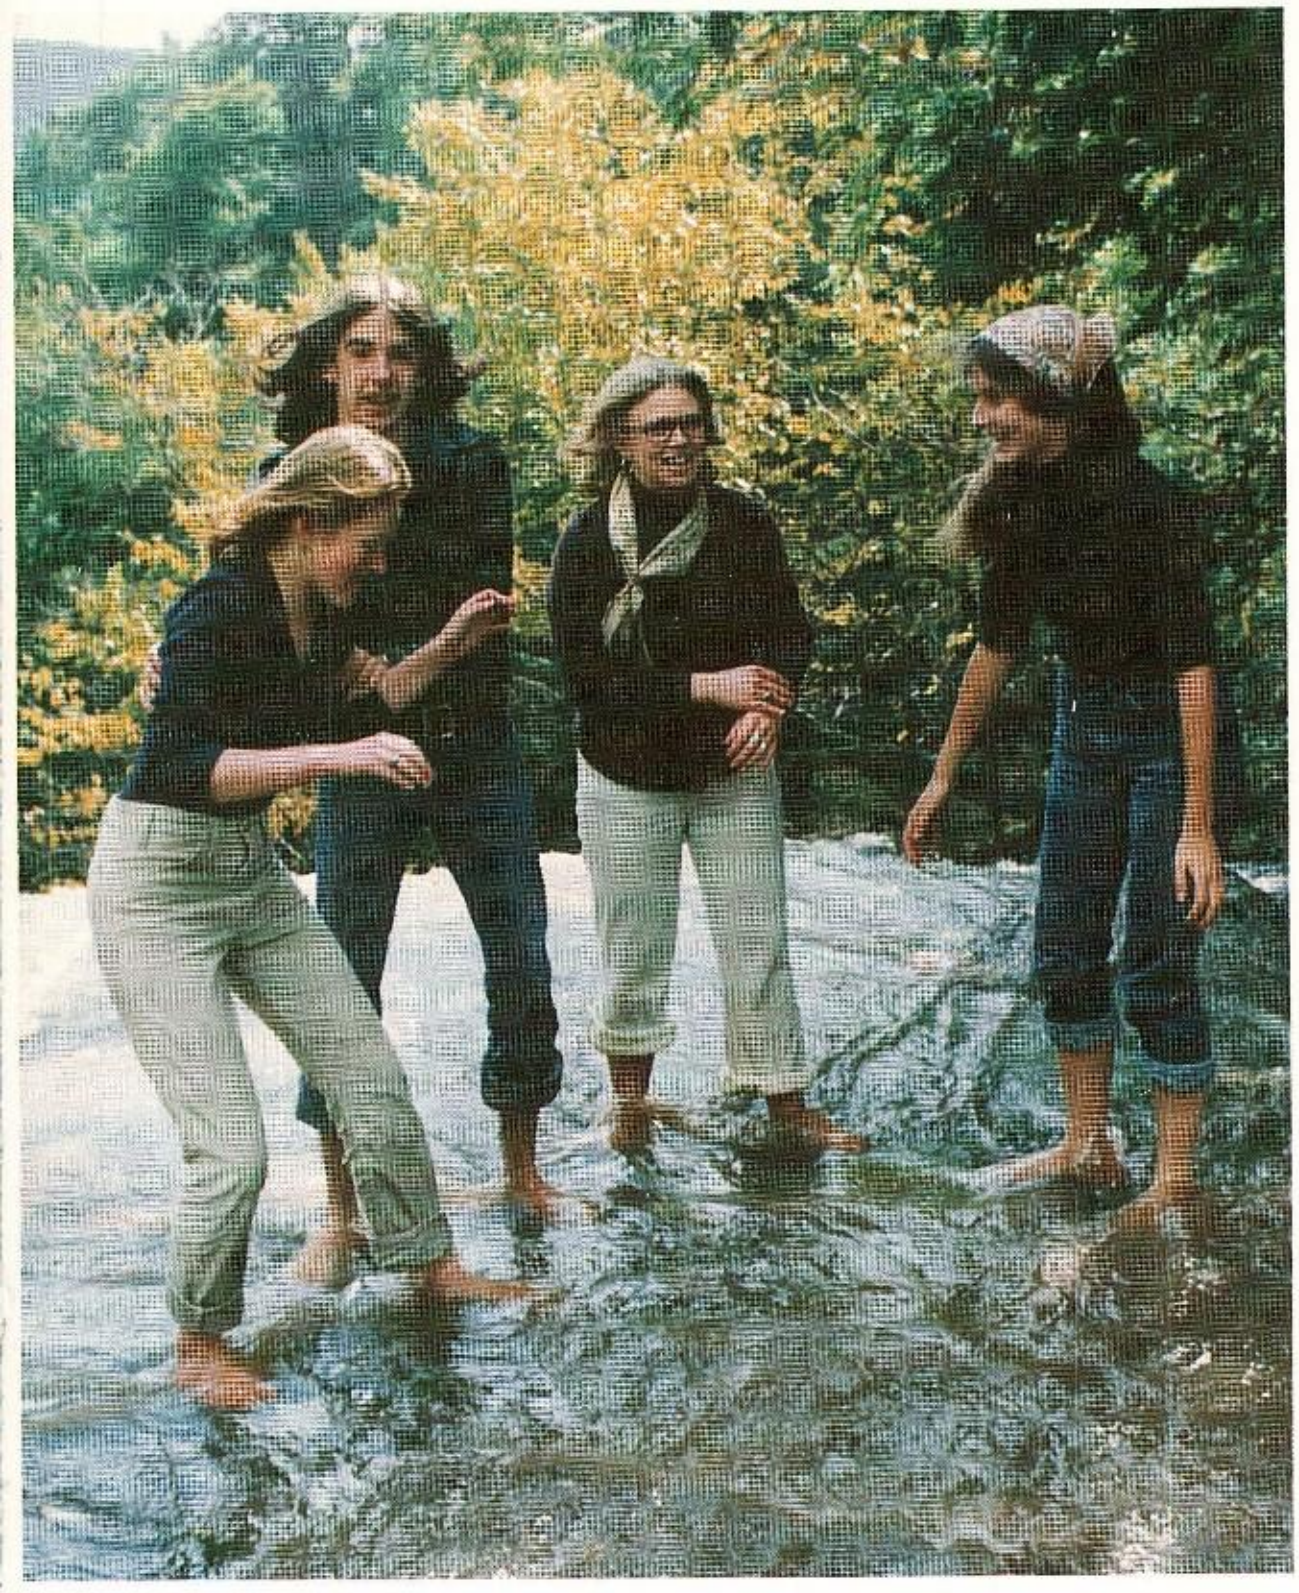
Everyone has the need
to grow
where and how he wishes . . .
observing,
questioning,
doing,
thus producing
the shades of individualism
that transform
into a person.





People are like weeds,
displaced and unwanted,
until they find
a definite identity
which, above all,
is pleasing to themselves.

Gift of youth.

This gift was embodied in a mythical ring belonging to a hero, Ogier the Dane. Ogier's ring not only removed the wearer's infirmities; it also restored his youth. Try your Balfour class ring 50 years from now. Maybe it can do the same.

s youth journey to find their own
place in life
ney must evaluate their goals
stopping,
resting,
thinking.
owever, the pursuit of these goals
must be done at a pace
set by each individual —
not going too fast
and not looking too far —
not passing [illegible] he is seeking.
hen the search is over,
it will seem as though
the world has changed,
or is [illegible]
